

ABSTRACT

The present invention includes a communication circuit for a head including a first row of communication points positioned along at least one edge of the communication circuit and a second row of communication points positioned along at least one edge of the communication circuit and behind the first row with the communication circuit being connected to the head through the first and second rows of connection points.

10044578-01103